JOEL BERMAN GLASS STUDIOS ANNOUNCES NEW DESIGN COLLABORATION

Vancouver, BC, Canada – Joel Berman Glass Studios is pleased to announce that it has entered into a design collaboration arrangement with XLG Inc., an award-winning product design studio based in Dallas. The collaboration will see the companies cooperatively develop new patterns to be cast in glass for the architecture and interior design industry.

Several new pattern designs are in development at Berman's Vancouver, BC studio and production facility, the first of which will be launched at the NeoCon World's Trade Fare in Chicago, June 11-13, 2007. The first new collaborative pattern design will be featured in panels of kiln-cast glass installed in Joel Berman Glass Studio's showroom at the Merchandise Mart in Chicago.

"We are very pleased to be working with Joel Berman," said XLG partner Charles Kane, adding "Our neo-modern designs contrast well with Berman's handcrafted organic textures."

"This new collaboration is an exciting development for us," said Joel Berman, founder and president of Joel Berman Glass Studios International Ltd. "Together with XLG we will bring to the architecture and interior design community patterns in glass that are unlike anything we've done in the past. These new patterns will offer structured geometry in a handcrafted modernist approach."
